REPORT, &c.

THE Medical Faculty of the University of Pennsylvania, in presenting their Annual Report, have pleasure in assuring the Alumni and friends of the School of its continued prosperity. The number of matriculants* during the last year was 468, that of graduates 167. The former number has been exceeded but three times, the latter but four times in the history of the Institution. Both lists might have been swelled considerably, had the Faculty been disposed to base the credit of the School on numbers alone. By adding to the matriculants all who had been mere casual attendants upon the lectures, and by relaxing the long established rules of graduation, they might, with little difficulty, have augmented their catalogue beyond all precedent in the School. But it is their wish that the medical public should have the means of judging accurately of the state of the Institution; and the lists are so made out, that their faithfulness may be tested by any one who may be disposed to analyze them minutely. In relation to graduation, their sense of duty to the School, to the medical profession, and to the public at large, binds them to a strict observance of the rules. No supposed private interest could excuse them in overstepping these boundaries.

The Faculty consider themselves not as engaged in a private enterprise for their own special benefit, but as depositaries of a great public and professional interest. They owe it to the Alumni of the University, distributed in thousands through the Union, that the credit of the degree should not suffer by any act or neglect of theirs. They owe it to the country, that the confidence with which they have hitherto been honoured should not be abused for selfish purposes. They owe it to the University itself, as an Institution long established, highly honoured in times past, and looking to a future of continued respect and usefulness, that no temporary views of expediency should be allowed to turn it from its straight-forward and dignified course. With these convictions of duty, the Faculty feel themselves bound to maintain the integrity of their testimonials to the public, and to present in perfect openness a statement of their operations, both as a pledge of their sincerity, and as a means by which all concerned may judge how far the School merits continued support.

In common with their medical brethren generally, the Faculty feel the importance of increasing the usefulness, honour, and real dignity of the profession. They have, from an early period, heartily participated in the movement which has had this great end in view. At the foundation of all efforts of amelioration is the improvement of medical tuition. The stream can never be purified until the sources which supply it are pure. As most of the new members of the profession join it through the portals of the Schools, it becomes these not only to be careful that none should pass with deficiencies calculated to disgrace their calling, but also to strive that the grade of qualification should be as high as circumstances will at all permit. Very naturally, therefore, the profession looked to the Schools for aid in its work of self-advancement, and only exercised a right when it called upon them for co-operation. It is well known that the University of Pennsylvania was prompt in responding to that call. The Faculty believed that the position of the School, existing and historical, made it especially their duty to take the first step in advance. They were well aware that doubts were entertained of the policy of the measure in relation to the peculiar interests of the School; but they conceived that they were fulfilling an imperative obligation, that unless they moved, others could scarcely be expected to do so, and medical education must be hopelessly surrendered to the relative mediocrity in which it stood in this country, compared with other parts of the civilized world. They had confidence, too, in the earnest intentions of the profession at large, and believed that they might rely on its support. The first great measure required was to extend the lecture term. This was accordingly done, at first to five months and a half, and afterwards to six months; the full period recommended by the American Medical Association. In the last two sessions, the lectures have begun regularly on the first Monday in October, and ended with the close of March; as formerly, when of four months' duration, they began on the first Monday in November, and closed with February. The movement has been made in perfect good faith by the Faculty; and the whole lengthened term has been occupied by a regular series of instruction founded on this extended basis. They have no disposition to enter into controversy in relation to the real advantages of this system. These advantages seem to them so obvious, that they willingly leave the question to the unbiassed judgment of the medical community. Certainly, if a measure can be judged by its fruits, this must, so far as experience has yet determined, be considered as highly efficacious. Never have the young men exhibited so zealous a devotion to their studies, so regular an attendance upon the Lectures, so serious and orderly a deportment in the classes, as during the last session. They appeared to participate in the earnest desire for improvement which has been spread abroad in the profession, and to have come to the business of their studies imbued with that serious sense of their importance which gives elevation and steadiness to the character and conduct. On this score, the Faculty have every reason to congratulate themselves on their perseverance in the new system.

Nor have they occasion to regret it on the score of mere policy. It is not always easy to determine how far certain obvious results are really ascribable to the apparent causes; but the Faculty can see no other reason than the prolongation of the courses, for the very considerable average increase of the classes over those of preceding years. The term was first extended in the Session of 1847-48, when the lectures began about the middle of October and terminated at the end of March, and was still further extended in the Session of 1849-50, when they opened on the first Monday of October. Now, during that period of four years, the average annual number of matriculants has been 478. During the four preceding years it was 437, during the ten preceding 411, during the twenty preceding 404; and, from 1810-11 up to the year of the change, it was 402. This statement conclusively shows that at least there has been no falling off in numbers; and the experiment, while satisfactory in all other points, must be admitted not to have failed in this.

With these facts before them, showing that the plan has worked well both for the pupils and the School, it would be unpardonable in the Faculty to recede from the advanced position they have taken; and they may be permitted to hope that in the end the other Schools will come into the measure, and that, this great gain being secured, the way may be open for still further progress.

The Faculty will be excused for this somewhat prolonged reference to their own concerns, when it is considered that these concerns, so far as they have hitherto occupied our attention, are also those of the profession generally. They have no intention to set forth any peculiar advantages which the School may be supposed to possess. These, as well as the qualifications of the teachers, will be judged of by the impression they may make on others, rather than by the representations of the interested party. In conclusion, therefore, they have only to say, that, whatever may be thought of the opportunities they have to offer, of this their friends may be assured, that their most zealous efforts will be directed to the improvement of the young men who may come under their tuition, and, through them, to the elevation of the profession of which they are to form a part.

REGULATIONS

OF THE

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT OF THE UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

The Medical Department is under the immediate Government of the Medical Professors, who constitute the Faculty of Medicine, subject to the Rules and Statutes of the Board of Trustees. The Faculty consists of

- A Professor of the THEORY AND PRACTICE OF MEDICINE and CLINICAL MEDICINE,
- A Professor of ANATOMY,
- A Professor of MATERIA MEDICA and PHARMACY.
- A Professor of CHEMISTRY,
- A Professor of SURGERY,
- A Professor of OBSTETRICS and the DISEASES OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN, and
- A Professor of the INSTITUTES OF MEDICINE.

The Medical Faculty hold meetings for the purpose of arranging and conducting the business of their department, and for the preservation of order and decorum among the medical students.

One of the members acts as Dean, whose duty it is to keep the Minutes of the Faculty, to arrange the examinations of the candidates for graduation, to conduct the business of the Faculty at their meetings, and to attend to correspondence.

The Session for the Medical Lectures begins on the first Monday in October, and ends at the close of March ensuing.

The Commencement for conferring the Degree of Doctor of Medicine, is held by a special mandamus of the Board of Trustees, early in April.

The following are the Rules in force in relation to the Degree of Doctor of Medicine.

I. The candidate must have attained the age of twenty-one years, have applied himself to the study of Medicine for three years, and been, during that time, the private pupil, for two years at least, of a respectable practitioner of Medicine.

II. The candidate must also have attended two complete courses of the following Lectures in this Institution :

- Theory and Practice of Medicine,
- Anatomy,
- Materia Medica and Pharmacy,
- Chemistry,
- Surgery,
- Obstetrics and the Diseases of Women and Children
- Institutes of Medicine.

III. Medical students who have attended one complete course in a respectable

Medical School, where the attendance on two complete courses is necessary to a degree, where the same branches are taught as in this, and which is placed upon the ad Eundem of this school, are permitted to become candidates by an attendance here for one full course; the rules of graduation being in other respects observed. They are also exempted from the payment of fees upon attending here a second term.

IV. The candidate must also have attended one course of Clinical Instruction in the Pennsylvania Hospital, or some other Institution approved of by the Faculty of Medicine.

V. When a candidate applies to the Dean for admission, he must exhibit his tickets to prove that the above Rules have been complied with.

VI. The candidate, at the time of his application, must deliver to the Dean of the Medical Faculty a Thesis, composed by himself, on some medical subject. This thesis is referred to one of the Professors, who shall examine the candidate upon it, and make his report thereon to the Medical Faculty.

VII. When a candidate is rejected, his essay will be retained by the Medical Faculty.

VIII. The essay must be in the candidate's own hand-writing, and must be written uniformly on letter paper of the same size, the alternate pages being left blank.*

IX. General bad spelling in a Thesis, or general inattention to the rules of grammar, will preclude a candidate from examination for a degree.

X. A Thesis may be published by the candidate if he desire it, the permission of the Professor by whom he was examined thereon being first obtained; but no alteration shall be afterwards made in such thesis without the consent of the said Professor.

XI. The voting on the case of each candidate is by private ballot.

XII. The candidate shall pay the fees of graduation at the time of his examination, or before receiving notice of his success; his name may then be entered, but not previously, on the Register of passed candidates, for the purpose of being reported to the Board of Trustees and included in the mandamus for a Degree.

XIII. Candidates who have passed their examination, and in other respects complied with the regulations, are to be reported by the Dean to the Provost, who will communicate such report to the Board of Trustees, in order that, if approved of by them, their mandamus be issued for conferring the Degree.

XIV. The Degree will not be conferred upon a candidate who absents himself from the public Commencement, except by special permission of the Medical Faculty.

XV. Graduates of Medical Schools, on the ad Eundem list, by attending, on a full set of tickets, one complete course in this Institution, are put upon the same footing with students who have attended two complete courses here; that is, they may present themselves as candidates for graduation—also if they attend a second time, the tickets will be free. Such graduates, if of five years' standing, are permitted to attend the course of Lectures, upon a general ticket of admission, free of expense, except the cost of the matriculating ticket. But this general ticket does not qualify for graduation.

* The Essay should be written upon Thesis paper, which can be procured at the Medical bookstores. This is for the purpose of convenient binding together into volumes.

RULES OF EXAMINATION FOR THE DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF MEDICINE.

1. The names and essays of the candidates are to be presented to the Dean on or before the first day of February in each year. The candidates are then to be divided, either by their own arrangement or by that of the Dean, into classes, the number of persons in each to be fixed by the Dean.

2. These classes will be designated numerically, and then formed into groups, there being seven classes in each group.

3. No person's name will be received on a class unless his essay be in possession of the Dean; nor is his name to be attached to a class by any other than the Dean, unless he shall have signified his desire to that effect.

4. The classes are to call at the houses of the several Professors, or at some other place designated by the latter; and when in attendance, each of the individuals composing a class is to be examined separately, and in the order of his name on the list of his class.

5. Each Professor is to keep a list of those examined by him, and opposite to the name of each candidate is to note the result of his examination, with the view to vote in the affirmative or negative, as to his qualifications for the Degree.

6. As the examination of each group of classes shall be completed, the Faculty will meet; the names of the candidates examined are to be read by the Dean; and as each name is called the Professors are to consult their memoranda, and, if no remarks be made, are to proceed to vote by ballot. Without three negative votes, the candidate is to be considered as having passed, and is to be entitled to his Degree. Should three negative votes be cast, the candidate is suspended, but with the privilege of another examination before the whole Faculty in joint session. Upon this second examination three negative votes reject for that season of examination, but the candidate may present himself in a subsequent season.

7. A candidate unsuccessful in the first ballot, upon declining an examination before the Faculty in joint session, has the privilege of withdrawing his Thesis, without being considered as rejected.

8. If, upon the name of a candidate being called out, one or more of the Faculty have remarks to make in relation to his qualifications, they are to be heard before the vote is taken.

9. The candidates in classes being thus disposed of, the Faculty will then proceed with those who may prefer an examination before the Faculty in joint session; and afterwards with those who, having received three negative votes, may still choose to avail themselves of the opportunity of the second examination offered by the Faculty.

10. Official notice of a successful examination will be delivered upon the fees of graduation being paid, after which the candidate will insert his own name with the title of his Essay, upon the Register of Graduates. No diploma will be made out, or passed candidate reported to the Board of Trustees, except from an entry upon the Register.

11. If a Thesis be found remarkable for any good quality, the fact is to be reported by the Professor having charge of the Thesis, to the Faculty at their meeting, who may take upon it such action as they may deem advisable.
